

CURRICULUM VITAE

WATANABE, Tsugihiko Ph.D¹

Dr. Tsugihiko WATANABE is a Professor of Graduate School of Global Environmental Studies, Kyoto University, Japan. He got his doctor's degree in agricultural engineering from Kyoto University (1989). Previously, in Japan, he was a Research Assistant (1984-89) and Associate Professor (1989-1995) of Kyoto University, Associate Professor of Osaka Prefecture University (1995-2001), and Associate Professor and Professor of RIHN (Research Institute for Humanity and Nature) (2001-2013). He has research experiences of 40 years related to irrigation management, rural hydrological regime and climate change impacts on basin hydrology and agriculture. His case study areas cover both humid and arid areas, mainly in Japan, Inner-Mongolia of China, California of USA, Kazakhstan, Turkey and Egypt.

He had been acting as the President of JSIDRE (Japanese Society of Irrigation, Drainage and Rural Engineering) for two years until March, 2016 and now is the President of PAWEES (International Society of Paddy and Water Environment Engineering) and the President of JSHWR (Japanese Society of Hydrology and Water Resources). He is also serving as the chair of the Working Group on Global Climate Change and Agricultural Water Management (WG-CLIMATE) of ICID and the secretary of the Scientific Committee of ILEC (International Lake Environment Committee).

He has over 200 publications including peer-reviewed journal papers, book chapters and general reports. His recent publications include a book titled "Development of Regional Wisdom of Land and Water" edited by T. Watanabe with JSIDRE (in Japanese, 2009), and book chapters in "Sustainable Land Management" edited by K. Selim et al., 2010 (Springer) and "Climate Change in Asia and the Pacific" edited by V. Anbumozhi et al. with ADBI, 2012.

¹ Professor, Graduate School of Global Environmental Studies, Kyoto University, Japan. Sakyo-ku, Kyoto 606-8501 Japan, nabe@kais.kyoto-u.ac.jp
